they had been treated, and had no complaint to make against any of the officers. "C. PORTER, Superintendent.

10. Journal of the American Statistical Association, 1990, 85, 1031-1036.

The following documents with reference to a deputation from the Trades and Labour Council and the Typographical Society to the Hon. G. R. Dibbs, Colonial Treasurer, respecting alleged abuses in the Government Printing Office have been laid before the House:

The Treasurer, New South Wales, Sydney, Aug. 24.

"Gentlemen,—With reference to the various matters in connection with the administration of the Government Printing Office, I am glad to hear that you are desirous of being consulted by the Government on the subject."

The Colonial Treasurer, at an interview accorded to a deputation of the Trades and Labour Council and of the Typographical Society on the 27th July last, has listened patiently to their views, made such inquiries as were necessary, and further considered the whole subject; and I am directed to convey to you his views thereupon.

"Inasmuch as the duties of the deputation may, for convenience sake, be classed under separate heads, the first being that which affects the right of the Government to use the names of its employees in its best interests, and secondly, the question of the printing of official or quasi-official books or pamphlets on subjects of common interest, and for the common advantage of the community, it will be convenient to discuss them separately, and to affect the rate of wages and the fair treatment of the employees of the establishment."

"With respect to the first point, Mr. Dibbs fully explained to the deputation at the time that competition with private establishments was entirely foreign to the object, and would be altogether inconsistent with the principle he will always endeavour to maintain. The alleged instances of depredation, as quoted by the deputation, and if it is presumed that they are true in its most literal sense, do not appear to be either of a national character, as tending to illustrate and develop the resources of the colony, or of an educational character, as tending to the benefit of the people. They are rather publications involving a question of pecuniary benefit or profit either to author, printer, or publisher, which Mr. Dibbs has no objection to leave to the management of those persons undertaken by the trade. These official works are entirely outside the ordinary character of works placed in the hands of private printers, and, by reason of the public authority, which enlarges their circulation both here and abroad, and establishes in the greatest degree their public utility, are under the direct supervision and control of the discretion of the Government, within the limits of its proper responsibilities, to authorise the publication and issue of such works, and to determine the remuneration to be paid without laying itself open to the charge of unfair competition with private establishments."

"The second question referred to—the rate of wages upon the fair treatment of the employees—I am to state that Mr. Dibbs had requested Mr. Richards to furnish him with a report upon the subject, a copy of which is enclosed herewith, and which will be forwarded to the members of the Council. The papers contained in the appendix thereto, the deputation will be satisfied that those grievances of which they complained are well founded."

"I am to add that, having regard to the necessity for preserving strict discipline in the Government Printing Office, and the importance of maintaining the reputation of the establishment to the fact that the regulations provide for an appeal, in all cases from the workmen to the highest authority, the Minister, who is himself responsible to Parliament, Mr. Dibbs has no objection to the suggestion of the deputation that it is most undesirable that any interference with the management by any trade or other organisation should be permitted."

"I have the honour to be, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant
GEO. ROBERTS, Secy. to the GOVERNMENT."

"E. W. O'Sullivan, Esq., president of the Trades and Labour Council; and J. Ellis, Esq., president of the Typographical Society."

"It is well known that in almost every large printing concern a few naturally restless and disaffected members of the staff are always to be found. If they are not dealt with judiciously, or, preferably, they have not the power to do so. The rules laid down for their guidance in the discharge of their duties are as a rule, not only fair but also just. It is only in the case of those against them, which indeed have been few and usually of a trifling character, have been carefully investigated, and, if found to be well founded, they have been dealt with severely; it would be that some of them have been a little indulgent at times to some men who deserved no consideration."

"It is I want to state that the principle of graduation promotions which has been applied for many years past has worked very well. Every indusment is held out to the men to qualify themselves for promotion. The men who are promoted are now in well-paid and responsible positions in the office. A large number have attained to permanent employment. The men who are not promoted are not discontented. The indifferent 'type-setters' have been instructed to do the proper standard of efficiency. These things are so well done that the men are not discontented. The men are not in excess of the number of hands required; and a compound of these things, once in this office, can rarely be induced to leave it to go to another office."

"Although the deputation stated there was nothing to argue respecting the permanent hands, it is desirable, in order to get the men to work, to have a number of men, to state that the number of hands permanently employed in the various trades carried on in the Department is about 3300. At the time the deputation waited upon the Hon. the Secretary, the number of hands permanently employed was 3400. Had there been any for some time previously; but shortly before the opening of each session of Parliament, during the last session, the number of hands permanently employed was increased by about 40 permanent compositors, three fourths of whom are engaged for the purpose of setting up the skeleton of the new Government known as the "Hassard" Government. These companies are paid, for both day and night work, at the rate of 134. per thousand and 164. per hour for time with 15 per cent. added on account of the solidness of the matter, the shortness of the measure, and the necessity for keeping the same secret. The Government has employed on this particular work. For all other work the rates are relative to those paid for the "Hassard."

APPENDIX.

* Memorandum of Superintendent respecting a Statement made by a Deputation to the Government Printer.

At about 3 p.m. on the 8th August, 1883, I was asked by the Government Printer to receive a statement which was being made by a deputation, consisting of Messrs. James

"The deputation said that neither they nor the men whom they represented had authorized the members of the Trade and Labour Council who recently waited upon the Hon. the Secretary of the Government to make any complaint or to present any grievances on their behalf; that they were merely expressing their opinion on the existence of grounds of complaint that would warrant this appeal to the Minister; that they were satisfied with the system of the police; that the police were not the system of terrorism alleged to exist was purely imaginary; that they had never been asked to say or do anything inconsistent with the fullest freedom of action; and, finally, that they were perfectly satisfied with the way in which

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY'S SHOW.

There was yesterday again a large attendance at the Agricultural Society's Show at Moor Park, from 3000 to 4000 persons visiting the grounds during the day. In the morning there was a parade of cattle, and in the afternoon the horse races were commenced, and a handsome four-in-hand and the groom of Mr. J. H. Blandford won the first round on the parade track at a spanking pace, and drew much tumult. The turnout was awarded first prize as the best team of four horses in the county, and the prize was given by a team of four boys wearing the blue ribbons of victory, was most favourably commented upon. The coachman was also awarded the prize presented by Mr. Walter Lamb for turning out his horses in the best manner. The prize offered by the Company's prize, for the best jumping, was awarded to A. F. Smart's "Bunda," with Mr. Frank M'Mahon's "Victor" second. The jumping caused some excitement among the spectators, and especially so when the winner of the jump took others in a "slapdash" style that made the performance very sensational, had a fall. Despite to be a good horse and runner, after he had tried his best to win, but without success. Mr. Walter Lamb's horse for the fastest trotter was Mr. Tilden's "Swamp Angel," and Mr. Thomas Morley's "Tommy Springs" was the fastest up to the top of the hill. Both were highly commended. Mr. Alex. Wilson acted in conjunction with Mr. West as steward in the horse section. In connection with the horse races, the following was the death of a valuable ram worth several hundred pounds, the property of Mr. Vincent Dowling, of Luss, Kylesnoe. The ram had been kept in a railway truck, it is said for several days, and was found dead when it was taken out by slanting, in the machinery sections, the truck. The judges yesterday concluded their work, and a list of their decisions is appended. A trial of Mr. Price Williams' wool was made, and the result was that the wool produced a good deal of attention. In the press the chain was coiled round a spiral cone, the winding commencing at the large end, and therefore winding round the spiral cone in a clockwise direction. The wool was light, thus increasing the water in proportion as the resistance of the wool becomes greater. The press appeared to work very well, and should be a great improvement on the quality of the wool now pressed, and where it would not pay to purchase more expensive machinery. It is said that from 20 to 25 bales of wool can be pressed by it. The press was made by M. Elliott, exhibited Barton and Ferkin's steam ploughing machinery in operation during the afternoon. This plough requires no special engine, but may be worked by any of the engines exhibited. It is a simple and efficient system of ploughing is said to have are that two men can work the engine and plough, and do more than an acre an hour with a four-furrow plough. A wire rope from a large drum, passing through two pulleys, is attached to the plough and is ploughed in blocks up to 30 acres at a time, and the rope, passing through two patent self-acting anchors attached on the handbars, draws the plough from one to the other, and the plough is drawn back by the rope, and is ready to start again. The anchors move forward each time the plough reaches them the requisite distance for the next set of furrows. This machinery is a great improvement on the old one, and is especially adapted for level land.

Dr. Leval's machines for the separation of cream from milk. The "Separator" is a small compact machine which is driven by a belt from a steam engine, and is capable of rapidly separating the milk from the cream by the means of a rapid rotary motion. It thus claims to do away with the old-fashioned butter churn, and the necessity of stirring the cream in shallow pans till the cream collects and then skimmed. Milk fresh from the cow, it is said, can be separated even more completely than when it has been churned. The separator is one of the novelties of the Vernon play-day a number of selections of music in honor of sales for to-day has been arranged as follows:—At 9.30 o'clock a m. fat cattle will be put up, and at 10.30 o'clock a m. the following will be put up:—The non-competitive cattle will follow, and after them the non-competitive horses and non-competitive cattle. Sheep, goats, poultry, &c., will be sold at 12 o'clock a m. Yesterday afternoon the police were called out to remove a number of the stalls, and on being arrested by the police and chased two others were found on him. He was promptly city in the last class, and Mr. Marklove and Mr. Waterbury have excellent exhibits in the former. A ducking of Mr. Sheridan's deserves special notice amongst the fine ones here, as perhaps the finest of the class. It is a fulva—a "Cinnamon" with a couple of pens of those peculiar fowls known as Laguna's. They are an American variety and are not easily described. The main body is of the color of the fulva, but the head is greenish, and that the flesh is of a more delicate white than of similar-sized brood. The duck takes no so good as fulva; in fact the Aylesbury, the most fashionable breed, is a pen of the fulva and is not so good as the fulva in the same respect. There is an excellent w of pigeons, particularly of Antwerp and carrier; the Canary section, though very small, is good. The fulva is a very good specimen, and is able to pounce upon a thief who forms one of a class of the fulva that take advantage of these poultry shows to steal from the cages. A watch was set and a man found in the act of stealing a fulva from the cage of the owner of the sex can be got to prosecute. For some minuted minutely by Lloyd's surveyer; Mr. Dixon, professor of chemistry at the Technical College; Mr. Frank, of the Commercial Union Assurance Co.; Mr. Gifford, of the company, and others. Mr. Craikbank, engineer for the Marine Board, was unavoidably absent. The result was considered to be most satisfactory, there being no objection to the ship being taken to sea. The machinery part of the ship being as free from it as the propeller had been fitted with the old blades, the result of this important result is considered as against the manganese. It is to be noted that many steamers are now fitted, and which necessitate covering of the exposed parts of the ship with zinc, a fact that is at present the cause of much loss of ship in bronze, which is claimed to be even stronger and heavier than manganese. Besides this, the manganese bronze blades are not nearly so thick as the old ones, which will be a great saving. The ship, with the former will have a much greater speed than she has the old style of iron propeller. During the passage of the Caterpillar to China and back, she averaged

and from his speech in the House of Lords

and from his speech in the House of Lords, "If the Australian people desire an extension beyond their present limits," he said, "the most practical step that they could take, the one which will most facilitate any operation of that kind, and diminish in the greatest degree the responsibilities of the mother country, would be the confederation of those colonies in one united whole, which would be powerful enough to undertake and to carry through tasks for which no one colony is at present sufficient." We have no doubt that to the extent of urging a common appeal, and of offering a common guarantee, the colonies will accept Lord DUNN's condition. For this purpose it is understood a Federal Con-

which the Secretary of the colonies lays down and the Parliaments of the various colonies consent to become responsible for the pledges of the Convention, annexation will be the natural result. We do not see how the confederation of the colonies can affect some of the difficulties which Lord DRAWY raises. The extent of New Guinea will be quite as great, the interior of the island will be as dark, and the natives must be as hostile after federation as now. Under any circumstances also the responsibilities of the mother country must be to some extent increased. But if the colonies unite they will certainly have a right to ask Great Britain to annex New Guinea. In effect, at least, the Government of Stave has promised that annexation shall follow federation, and if the colonies should be able to settle the latter they will be entitled to the former. So far as we are able to gather from the information that has reached us, this is exactly the situation.

e half-yearly meeting of the Great Cobar Coppe

case, to which we do not now allude, the judgment of his Honor Mr. District Court Judge DOWLING in TAYLOR v. WEST and another raises a question of public policy of no small importance. The action was for an alleged nuisance, but the damages were laid at the sum of $10. If more than $20 had been claimed, either party could have demanded a hearing in a jury court; but the object of the plaintiff in claiming less seemed to have been to avoid such a hearing before a Jury only. The Judge thought that "if ever there was a case that ought to be tried by a jury, assuredly this was the one," and he held that the District Courts Act ought to be amended so as to enable the Judges to order such a case to be tried by a jury. The chief ground for an alteration of the law—if the law were altered as pro-

£197,616; leaving a balance of £68,411, which the directors had appropriated as follows: To writi

posed—would probably be this, that it is not fair to enable a plaintiff to force a defendant to have his case tried by a Judge only. Litigation is essentially a trial by jury, which the use of money paid for in no sense represents the importance of the interests involved. In the Supreme Court, though the amount of the claim be less than £20, a jury is summoned as a matter of course. But if a plaintiff chose not only to reduce his claim below £20, but also to bring it in the District Court, the defendant is cut off from the advantage, or what he may regard as the advantage, of having a jury, although the question may to him have an importance far exceeding that of the amount sued for. It is probable that when this principle was embodied in the District Courts Act the object was to cheapen fairly well supplied, and for Victorian aside the prices correspond with those ruling could hardly have been to enable plaintiffs to procure the settlement of important questions of right without the possible intervention of a jury.

Mr. District Court Judge DOWLING says that in this case the interests involved were too great to be left to the sole consideration of a Judge. An intelligent and upright Judge should be as competent to decide upon such matters of fact as were at issue here as four or even a dozen jurymen. But this is not a mere question of competence. Neither should such cases be withdrawn from the sole jurisdiction of a Judge because of the unwillingness on a Judge's part to undertake the discharge of such a duty. The Judges in England sent in a formal protest against being charged with the work of adjudicating upon disputed elec-are asking 12s. Trade sales of whisky made current rates. In metals, galvanised iron may tions; but the task had been imposed upon them by the Legislature, and they were not relieved from it. The sole jurisdiction of the Judge in cases below £20 is a distinctive feature of the District Courts act, and it ought not to be excised inconspicuously. It is easy to see that under the action of the law, and under this particular part of the District Court system, though intended to serve some very good purposes, may operate against the principles of justice and general expediency. The fact is that the mere amount of the plaintiff's claim is not always a sufficient and satisfactory test or gauge to determine where, or how, or under what conditions the trial shall take place. Cases of a certain class would be better treated in one way, and cases of another class in another, without regard to the leather sales to-day there was a better mark

the mere sum of $200. It is on this principle that the Legislature has withdrawn cases involving questions of title to land from the District Courts; and the District Courts Act embodies an admission that there may be cases wherein the plaintiff, though failing to recover more than $200, had sufficient reason for bringing them into the Supreme Court. There may therefore, as the law itself implies, be cases which would properly be tried in the Supreme Court, even though the claim was for less than $200. But if they were tried in the Supreme Court, they would be heard before a jury. It will be seen, therefore, that while the law admits that there are cases where the claim is small which would nevertheless, be properly tried before a jury, it allows the plaintiff to deprive the defendant of a jury by merely re-

£180 2s.: coffee and chocolate, £14 2s. 9d.; sugar (unpacked) £250 6s. 3d.; molasses, £6 18s. 5d.; opium

It will, perhaps, be said that if the claim exceeded £20 the defendant could force the plaintiff to have the trial before a jury against his will; and that when the plaintiff reduces the claim below £20 he only reverses this compulsory process. That is true; but what is the inference? Does the one wrong or the other? As it seems to us, the question whether there shall be a jury or not, no jury should not be left to the decision of either party against the will of the other. The better course would be to say that when a Judge saw that a case was of such a character as (without regard to the amount of the claim) made trial before a jury expedient, he should have power to order a trial before a jury. If this were the law, nuisance cases would frequently be so
